M-Day Drive Collects Estimated $45,000

Totals from Sunday's Mobilization Day effort for the Jewish Welfare Federation had not been compiled as The Post went to press this week, but unofficial estimates placed the collection at $45,000.

Some 300 workers took part, and report cards were returned as late as 4:30 p. m. to the headquarters in the Indiana National bank's 38th street branch.

The over-all drive total is in the neighborhood of $500,000, but many contributions are still outstanding.

A clean-up squad will swing into action some time next week to call on between 300 and 400 persons who were missed Sunday. Approximately 3,000 persons were on the M-Day list.

The volunteer workers began the day with bagel, lox, cream cheese, coffee and rolls in the bank basement. Noon-day refreshments of soft drinks, coffee, cold cut sandwiches and rolls restored their energy for the hot afternoon.

HANDICAPPED BY HONORING SABBATH . . .

Alfred D. Gruen Forfeits One Game, But Wins State Chess Crown Anyway

Alfred D. Gruen is the new Indiana state chess champion.

He won the title Sunday at Logansport, in the annual state competition, sponsored by the Indiana Chess association. And he had to overcome a handicap to do it, just because he honored the Sabbath.

The opening round of the tournament was held last Saturday, and Gruen lost a point because he wouldn't compete on Sabbath—although he was allowed to remain in the tournament. He happened to be the only Jewish participant this year.

"Three fellows had a half-point edge on me, going into the last round," the new champion says. "It so happened that all three lost, and we went into a four-man play-off."

Gruen won every game he played, and all other players lost at least two games each. He beat last year's champion, who has held the crown three times.

The new title-holder has participated in tournament chess since 1926, and has been Indianapolis city champion several times. He has represented the city and the state in competition a number of times. He also was captain of a Kirshbaum chess team several years ago.

"Chess isn't as popular as it used to be," he told The Post. "It's not like it was back in the Old Country, either. Younger people around here just aren't interested in it, it seems."

B'nai B'rith, JCRC Receive 250 Entries In City-Wide Essay Contest

Frank Albrecht, a senior at Arsenal Technical high school, was grand winner of the city-wide annual essay contest sponsored jointly by the local B'nai B'rith and the Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council.

More than 250 essays were submitted, from juniors and seniors in all Indianapolis public and parochial high schools. The subjects, designed to stimulate thinking in youths toward better community living, dealt with prejudice, the United Nations, human rights, civil rights and the responsibility of youths.

In addition to the city-wide winner, who was awarded a $50 United States savings bond, $15 bonds were awarded to the winner from each high school.

Lynn Cassen, Shortridge, was the only Jewish winner.

The others were Norma Anderson, Manual; Martha J. Belkes, St. John academy; Wilma Franklin, Crispus Attucks; Rose Ann Johnson, Sacred Heart; Raymond J. Kuhn, Cathedral; William Porter, George Washington; Martha Wade, St. Mary academy; Robert C. Ware, Howe, and Carol Welch, Broad Ripple.

Judges were Norman H. Abrams, Donald B. Atwell, Dr. H. J. Baumgartel, Floyd W. Burns, Emanuel Deitz, Msgr. John J. Doyle, Rabbi Samuel J. Fox, Miss Pauline French, Bert Gardner, Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt, Rabbi William P. Greenfeld, Mrs. Charles

T. Harman, Dr. Grover Hartman, C. Oliver Holmes, Mrs. Cary Jacobs.

Also, Mrs. Wayne C. Kimmel, Don Kirchhoffer, Julian A. Kiser, Albert Lamb, Dr. Sumner L. Martin, Dr. Russel S. Merkel, Mrs. I. Boyd Miller, Alan T. Nolan, Elmer Norris, Rev. R. H. Peoples, Judge Saul I. Rabb, William T. Ray, Robert Risch, Dr. Robert G. Risk, Fred Schoettle, Dr. Chaster Wharton and Dr. Joseph Zucker.

According to Mrs. Leon Cohen and Mrs. Sherman Weinstein, who served as local chairmen for the B'nai B'rith essay contest, the announcement of the winners was made in conjunction with the activities of the Mayor's committee for American Appreciation Month.

Hauling refrigerators and other heavy appliances, frequently on hilly, unpaved roads, Clarence R. Gilbert's 1950 Ford F-1 Pickup travelled 8,361 miles in the nationwide Ford Truck Economy Run.

"I haul my tough loads for only 2½¢ a mile!"

Clarence R. Gilbert says: "The Economy Run gave me proof that Ford Trucks cost less to run than any truck I ever owned!"

*Address furnished on request.

"My Ford Truck with Power Pilot is economical," says Clarence R. Gilbert, "and also gives me all the power I need!"

"During the six months of the Ford Truck Economy Run," he says, "my Ford F-1 Pickup travelled 8,361 miles, pulling heavy loads all the time. I made 2,002 stops. I got regular service from my Ford Dealer. My total expense for gas, oil, maintenance and repairs was $209. That's a running cost of only 2½ cents a mile!" Just one reason for this kind of economy is the Ford Truck POWER PILOT—which gives you the most power from the least gas!

2 New $50,000 Suits Filed in Tiff Over Seating Men, Women In Shul

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (NJP)—Two new suits, each for $50,000, are on file here in the internal dispute in Orthodox Keneseth Israel Congregation over mixed-seating of men and women.

The new suits bring to $200,000 the total amount asked in the controversy.

Harry Simon, who filed the original suit for $100,000 has filed another for $50,000 against Rabbi Benjamin Brilliant, charging the rabbi with using abusive language against him.

The other $50,000 suit was filed by Maurice Horvitz, attorney for Simon, who alleges that he was injured and humiliated a year ago when he says he was thrown from the steps of the congregation. Horvitz's suit was filed against 12 members of the congregation's board.

The suits are an outgrowth of a bitter internal fight in the congregation over the seating of men and women together during services. After a long battle, the issue was solved with the erection of a mechtza or curtain, permitting both sexes to sit on the main floor of the synagogue. Previously the women had been confined to the balcony.

Simon's initial suit against the entire board reached the courts.

Three of four motions by defense attorneys were denied by the judge. One of the three denied motions would have eliminated mention of the dispute in the synagogue on the grounds that this aspect of the suit was a religious matter only.

Summons were issued by the court in Horvitz's suit against the twelve board members. They have until June 7 to file a reply, Horvitz said.

In his $50,000 suit against Rabbi Brilliant, Simon alleges that on the Jewish holiday, Shevuoth, the spiritual leader abused him because Simon objected to the change in ritual. Simon said the rabbi, in the presence of about 200 persons, reflected on his character.

Baltimore Group Ends 20-Year Study of Complete Talmud

BALTIMORE—An unusual event in American Jewish life, the completion of a 20-year course of study in the Talmud will be marked with special ceremonies here.

Rabbi Israel Tabak, and the Shaarei Zion Talmud Society of Baltimore, who began the study two decades ago, will be honored at a three-day celebration, known traditionally as "Siyum Hagadol". Saturday, May 26, at the Congregation has been acclaimed Siyum Hagadol Sabbath.

A dinner in honor of the occasion will be given Sunday night with Dr. Leo Jung of New York as principal speaker. Dr. Jung installed Dr. Tabak as Rabbi of the Congregation 20 years ago.

Social Workers Meet Hears Hebrew 1st Time

ATLANTIC CITY (NJP)—Hebrew was spoken from a convention platform of the National Conference of Jewish Social Welfare for the first time in its 52 years of existence.

The precedent breaking event took place when Carl Urbont, assistant director of the 92nd Street YMHA of New York, recited Bialik's poem "Lamnatseach" before a thousand Jewish social workers as a tribute to the State of Israel.

Martin M. Cohn of Chicago was elected president of the Conference. He is budget director of the Jewish Federation and Jewish Welfare Fund of Chicago, and succeeds Charles Zunzer of New York.

The Conference voted to hold its 1952 annual meeting at the Congress hotel in Chicago, beginning May 31.

SLUGGERS STEAL SHOW; ABRAMS, ROSEN SHINE

With the Jewish big league hurlers seeing no action during the week preceding Monday, all the fireworks were furnished by the Jewish clouters who covered themselves with glory.

Cal Abrams continued to swat the apple with amazing regularity and with Monday's game blasted a singleton homer in the first game of Sunday's twin bill with the Cincinnati Reds and finished the day with five safeties out of ten trips to the plate.

Al Rosen provided the other big news of the week, when he blasted his second grand slam homer of the season in the contest with the Red Sox. The homer scored all the team's runs and was a solid clout which went all the way to the left field screen.

The blow boosted Rosen to the top in the runs batted in department for the American league with 27.

The all-Jewish battery of Rogovin and Ginsberg of the Detroit Tigers was broken up when the hurler was traded to the Chicago White Sox for Bob Cain.

Flam Downs Larsen To Cop California Title

BERKELEY, Calif.—Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, copped the men's singles title in the annual California state tournament with a straight set victory over Art Larsen.

Larsen who won the national singles title by defeating Flam in the finals last year, was no match for the Jewish ace. It was the second triumph for Flam in the seven times the two have met this year.

The scores were 6-3, 8-6, 6-2.

Jewish League Against Communism In Eclipse Says AJ Committee Man

By Z'EV KRONISH

National Jewish Post Correspondent

NEW YORK—The American Jewish League Against Communism, whose recent charge that Gen. Marshall and Admiral Nimitz were stooges of communism aroused such a furore, is in eclipse, a top civic relations man in the Jewish field believes.

Rabbi S. Andhil Fineberg, Community Service Director of the American Jewish Committee, told The Post this week that the League and its director, Rabbi Benjamin Schut Schultz are being strangled by a lack of publicity.

He attributed the League's inability to get publicity to a realization on the part of journalists, broadcasters and others that the League's importance had been overestimated.

Dr. Fineberg, the originator of the so-called "quarantine treatment" in combating anti-Semites, told the Post that Rabbi Schultz has "now been reduced to fishing in troubled waters" for headlines. Formerly he said that the League's name was blazoned across the headlines of the entire American press.

Probe Demand Ignored
He cited as an example Rabbi Schultz's recent demand for an investigation by Gov. Dewey of the Scarsdale school system. "Not a single newspaper in New York City carried a story of the demand," Fineberg asserted.

The League is losing strength and will continue to decline, Fineberg declared.

Fineberg disclosed that Schultz who had been dropped from the board of the All-America Conference to Combat Communism, had no place on the program at the group's last meeting in Philadelphia.

"On no occasion did he even sit at the head table," Rabbi Fineberg declared.

But two rabbis in no way affiliated with the League delivered two of the main addresses, Rabbi Fineberg disclosed.

Another reason for the League's decline, Fineberg declared, was the adoption of "intelligent anti-Communist programs by Jewish organizations." Rabbi Schultz will no longer appear as the sole rabbi who, along with his organization is wholeheartedly engaged in opposing Communism, he related.

Very Name Self-Defeating
"A Jewish League Against Communism" makes about as much sense as a 'Baptist League Against Rent Gouging," or a strength or continues to decline, he stated, depends on its critics "not blowing up."

"The very name is self-defeating," he said.

"Moreover," he continued, Jews do not believe that the spokesman of a Jewish organization should, by attacking such national heroes as General Marshall and Admiral Nimitz, give the impression that the entire Jewish community accuses these men of being tainted with Communism.

Communism must be met by Jews through the normal organizational channels, Rabbi Fineberg declared. It's presumptuous to think that 300 persons can do it for all the others.

He said that during the past year the American Jewish Committee and the Jewish Labor Committee have disseminated vastly more information about Communism and have done an infinitely greater job than the League could possibly "attempt with its lack of research facilities and its extremely limited outlets."

"Asserting that the Leagues importance is 'badly exaggerated in Jewish minds,' he observed that "it is amusing to find people who denounce anti-Communist hysteria becoming hysterical over something as insignificant as the League."

Whether the League gains

LIFSHUTZ HURLS LIE
ON KOSHER MEAT STORY

EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA—Chaplain Oscar M. Lifshutz, in a statement which bristled with anger characterized as an "unmitigated lie", the newspaper report that the UN High Command had chided the Jewish Chaplains for failure to provide kosher meat for American Jewish troops.

The Zionist Record of South Africa, reported (NJP, April 6, 1951) that Turkish Troops seeking kosher food, were advised by the Chief of the Jewish Chaplains that none was available.

No Request From Turkish Troops
"Our office has never received a request of any type from or on behalf of the Turkish forces in Korea," the Chaplain declared.

"Kosher meat is available for those who request it," the Chaplain declared.

Send Reporter He Tells Paper
"The National Jewish Welfare Board ships in sufficient quantities of kosher food items to enable us to be extremely liberal in our distribution."

Chaplain Lifshutz urged the Zionist Record to send a reporter "direct to Korea" to determine the facts.

He asserted that Jewish GIs travel for miles to come to a Jewish service. "They attend the oneg shabbat and take an active part in our Jewish program. They are fine representatives of our American Jewish community. Orthodox, Conservative and Reform men all sit and worship together. Numerous letters of thanks from soldiers in Korea for the parcels containing kosher food, which we have sent them on behalf of the Jewish community, bear eloquent testimony to the falsity of the statement reported in your article."

Major Fight Over Reform Seen As New Israel Seminary Planned

JERUSALEM—The first major battle between Orthodoxy and Liberal Judaism was believed to be shaping up here with establishment of the World Federation of Graduates of Theological Seminaries.

Backing the new body is Rabbi Leo Baeck, formerly chief rabbi of Berlin, who is honorary president of the World Confederation of Liberal Judaism (Reform).

The new organization, according to the Jerusalem Post, expects to establish a college and an Institute for Theological Studies for the training of rabbis from abroad.

Opposed By Ministry

The proposed seminary is opposed by the Ministry for Religious Affairs and by the Chief Rabbinate. The Seminary has the support however, of influential members of the government.

Fifty rabbis under the leadership of Dr. Leo Baeck voted to establish the Federation. Dr. Baeck told the rabbis that the five million Jews of America look to Israel for new spiritual values.

Opposing the idea of a seminary was Prof. J. Klausner of the Hebrew University, who asserted that its establishment would arouse the active opposition of the local rabbinate.

Dr. Samuel Loewinger, former head of the Budapest Theological College, was named chairman of a temporary praesidium of the Federation.

The Chimes of Orton Hall on the campus of Ohio State University rang out with Hatikva and other Israeli music Friday, May 11, to herald Israeli Independence Day.

Reform Women Join Orthodox To Pledge Strong Support To Jewish Education

(SEE EDITORIAL THIS ISSUE)

NEW YORK—The Jewish women of America this week went on record as favoring intensive Jewish education.

This move was taken by the Conference Committee of National Jewish Women's Organizations, which include almost every national Jewish women's organization.

The resolution pledged the Jewish women of the U.S. to use their active influence and best efforts in their communities "to make Jewish education of the highest quality available for all ages: children, youth and adults."

The organizations in the Conference Committee includes every major Jewish women's body in the U.S. They are Hadassah, Mizrahi Women's Organization of America, National Council of Jewish Women, National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, National Ladies Auxiliary of the Jewish War Veterans of the U. S., National Women's League of the United Synagogue, Pioneer Women's Organizations, United Order True Sisters, Grand Lodge; Women's American ORT, Women's Branch, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America;

Women's Division, American Jewish Congress; Women's Supreme Council, B'nai B'rith.

The full text of the significant resolution reads: "As Jews we are bearers of a heritage and tradition of freedom which emphasize the dignity of the individual, a concept which is the cornerstone of democracy. As American Jews, with our roots embedded deep in this beloved country, we will be both better Americans and better Jews as we strengthen our knowledge of Judaism."

"Today, as the result of decades of world wide strife and Nazi atrocities which destroyed great centers of Jewish learning elsewhere, new and greater responsibility for Jewish education falls upon the American Jewish community. Numbering five million, we are today not only numerically the largest Jewish community of all time, but also a richly powerful and fortunate community, which must take leadership in perpetuating Jewish learning and tradition."

"As we gather strength from the spiritual renaissance of Israel, so must our strength be transmitted from the American Jewish community to our fellow Jews in Israel and elsewhere throughout the world.

"Therefore be it resolved that we, the leaders and members of the constituent organizations of the Conference Committee of National Jewish Women's Organizations, shall dedicate ourselves and our organizations to use our active influence and our best efforts in our communities to make Jewish education of the highest quality available for all ages: children, youth, and adults."

"Be it further resolved that we give our cooperation and assert our interest in Jewish education in our homes, our Religious Schools, our Synagogues and our Jewish Community Centers so that our children shall be guided to accurate knowledge and sympathetic understanding of the ideals, struggles, and achievements of our people in their long, historic record of progress toward self-realization."

The women heard a symposium on "Jewish Survival Through Jewish Education. Taking part were Rabbi Julius Mark, Dr. Abraham Franzblau, and Dr. Henry Raphael Gold.

The Conference Committee met at Reform Temple Emanue Emanu-El here.

Another resolution urged the immediate ratification of the Genocide Convention by the U.S. Senate.

First Bar Mitzvah in 100 Years Stirs Reform Congregation in Bridgeport, Conn.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn.—Overwhelming enthusiasm greeted the first bar mitzvah ceremony ever to be held in the nearly 100 year old Reform Park Ave. Temple, in this community of nearly 15,000 Jews.

Two years of intensive study by Lee Michel Meshken with Rabbi Albert L. Martin, rabbi of the congregation for 23 years, and Mr. Irving

Non-Jew Buys Land For Temple

BRIDGEPORT, Conn.—Park Avenue Temple here was recently presented with a $12,000 gift for the purchase of a tract of land for the erection of a new building by Summer Simpson, a non-Jew, who is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Raybestos-Manhattan Co.

Block, the Hebrew teacher who is also a theological student at the Hebrew Union College, prepared the young man for this traditional ceremony.

In a completely filled congregation decorated tastefully with flowers and with the aid of the choir and organ, the bar mitzvah boy read from the Haftorah and the Torah, translating both into English.

The request for the bar mitzvah was made to the congregation nearly three years ago by the parents who were fulfilling the wishes of the grandparents.

It was decided then by the rabbi and the board of directors that any member who so wished it could have the ceremony "as long as it fitted into the pattern of reformed Judaism."

It was also stipulated that the boy would have to continue his studies in the Temple so that he would be able to be confirmed when he is 15 years of age.

Rabbi Martin when asked if other boys were preparing for a bar mitzvah said that he had a few others who were interested. He did not however as yet have any requests for a bar mitzvah but added "who can tell."

Following the synagogue ceremonies a reception was held in the vestry by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Meshken.

REPORT FROM HOLLYWOOD

ENTHUSIASTIC REVIEW OF DIENER'S 'TENT CITY'

By SIMON WINCEMBERG

PARAMOUNT vice-president, Jacob Karp, once again put the studio's best projection room at the disposal of the Israel Consulate, this time for a preview of "Tent City," Baruch Diener's new half-hour semi-documentary for Israel Motion Picture Studios, Ltd.

WINCEMBERG

Invitations on this occasion went less to "community leaders" and sympathetic film stars, than to people who, for one reason or another, had a personal interest in the development of Israel's motion picture industry. The film was introduced by Israel's new consul to the West Coast, Harry Beilin, who was presented by Yehoshua Brandstetter, head of IMPS.

"TENT CITY" will probably be the last major Israel film to suffer from Israel's lack of technical facilities for developing, printing, dubbing and shooting 35mm. footage with synchronized sound. At the moment, all the necessary equipment is either ordered or already on its way to Israel, and by fall of this year, Mr. Brandstetter expects the IMPS studio at Herzliya to have the finest motion picture facilities in the world. This is not merely an optimistic assumption, because, with the help of Sidney Solow, head of Consolidated Film Industries, the best of equipment obtainable has already been purchased.

London's artistic contribution to "Tent City" is an impressive score by Hans May, and a narration in which unfortunately a grown girl had to be used to read the thoughts of a little boy from Iraq, since no boy could be found in London, whose voice had the suitable oriental accent, unsubmerged by a British one. In London, requests from many sources for a booking of the film included one from the British Film Institute. In this country, it will run in art theaters, on television, and at special showings sponsored by UJA and UPA.

PHOTOGRAPHICALLY, "Tent City" is as good as anything that has ever been shot in Hollywood. Its cast is the first I have ever seen, whose striking, competent and natural behavior made it almost impossible to tell which were professional actors, and which were living their parts. As I found out later, the "German" couple were Israeli stage actors, and the Iraqi grandfather, a natural-born actor if there ever was one, and never in his life seen a camera or even a movie.

"Tent City" deals with a rather surprising subject. Intra-Jewish prejudice. Specifically, between German and Iraqi Jews. It is a theme against which Baruch, last year, had been warned by many of the very people who are now enthusiastic about it. His treatment of the relationship between the families may lack subtlety in spots, but it is handled with such sensitivity, seriousness and understanding throughout, hardly anyone who sees the film will disagree that the idea was very much worth doing, and that it is a distinct credit to Baruch's imagination and stubbornness.

HIS ONLY disappointment connected with the making of the picture, was Baruch's inability to direct it himself. While he was busy selecting his types out of a camp population of 20,000, the director's work fell to Leopold Lahola, author of the film story "A Candle for Ruth."

Baruch (born in Hamburg, Germany) has a three-fold theory as to what will overcome the real or superficial incompatibility between "Yekkes" and Oriental Jews. There is their mutual ignorance of spoken Hebrew, their common physical needs arising from their primitive tent existence, and their recognition that their common religious ties are far stronger than the social and cultural background which separates them.

In "Tent City," the "rapprochement" is sparked and cemented by their little boys, who soon find prejudice nothing but a nuisance interfering with normal play activity.

The morning after the preview, Mr. Brandstetter and others (even I) received calls from numerous people at the major studios who had gotten a first-hand report on the picture from someone, and wanted to know whether it would be possible to invite them to another showing. Very likely, it will be.

Mrs. Silverman Named Jewish Mother of 1951

PROVIDENCE—(WNS)—I da

Silverman, voted "Jewish Mother of 1951" and her husband, Archibald, will have a forest in Israel bearing their name, according to an announcement made by the New York office of the Jewish National Fund.

Disclosure of the news, which was made on the occasion of the Silverman's Golden Wedding anniversary, coincided with Mrs. Silverman's election as the mother of the year. The Forest will be planted in recognition of the services to the Jewish people and the Jewish Homeland rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Silverman through the years.

Israel's Influence

Jordan Women Win Privilege

JERUSALEM—The effect of the freedom allowed women in Israel has been felt in Jordan, it was believed here, where a new rule permits women to attend sessions of the Jordan parliament.

The concession was made by the Jordan authorities after months of demands and negotiations between the government and various Arab women's associations.

Only Syria of all the Arab countries permits women the right of suffrage.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

TWO FAVORITE SUBJECTS: WOMEN AT SYNAGOGUES AND BAR MITZVAHS

By HELEN COHEN

AS THEY have progressed from land to land on their world tour, during Rabbi Barnett Brickner's sabbatical year, Mrs. Brickner has sent home reports of their impressions and experiences, which Rabbi Samuel Silver, his assistant and our "Digest of the Yiddish Press" editor, has forwarded to me.

There have been two items which especially intrigued me. The first, from Israel, is a description of one of the numerous synagogues in the religious quarter of Jerusalem. "One synagogue," she writes, "is an 'omnibus' sanctuary, i.e. open to all Jewish groups. The congregants were a most heterogeneous group dressed in a variety of national garbs—from flowing Oriental robes to European business-suits. Whoever is designated to conduct the service does so in his own fashion. I could observe them only from the outside, since women were not admitted..."

Now that is what I call fancy figuring. One desires to pray in purity unsullied by the contaminating presence of females; then let one throw the meddling fools out altogether. However this poses a problem or two. How are the womenfolk to do their praying, or doesn't God listen to feminine devotions, and will the ladies organize their own separate synagogue and repair thither with their female offspring while papa carts junior off to his shul?

THE second account came from North Africa where Mrs. Brickner found the Jews either very poor or very wealthy. Telling of a Bar Mitzvah party which they attended in the home of a wealthy Moroccan family, she relates:

"We attended a bar mitzvah party in the home of an old Moroccan family. It was an Oriental feast.

"First, I must tell you that a boy is not bar mitzvah on the Sabbath. He is inducted into the household of Israel on a weekday when he can put on his Tails and Tefillin. A party is given by his parents to all the friends of the family. Never will I forget this party. We were ushered into a salon where all sat around the long walls on low couches, Arabic fashion..."

"All kinds of wines and liquors and almonds and olives were passed to us. At 11 o'clock our hostess, the mother of the bar mitzvah, ushered us into another room where a buffet spread was arranged on a long table from one end of the room to the other.

"This table groaned with all the delicacies of the Oriental French and Jewish culinary arts. I have never seen such delicacies, all made at home. I was told it only took three days to get it together. Such confections! Only an artist could create them. I was enjoined to taste only those that were "tipique" (typical of the land). One was a small cake in the shape of a flower made of almonds and honey, the stem containing an almond paste which melted in your mouth. The hospitality, as I said, is endless."

ONE thing, at least, can be said for North African Jewry. They know into which category they fit. The paupers there wouldn't dream of behaving like their more affluent brothers. From what she writes, we can safely assume that the bar mitzvah affair described refers only to what prevails on the better side of the tracks.

Here in America it is different. Unaffluent parents of bar mitzvah boys here don't have sense enough to behave like poor folk. They think it is necessary for all bar mitzvah receptions to leave the guests with the impression that the "new-man-in-Israel's" family is at worst in the millionaire class. Surely it is much better to go into debt than to face the thought of providing less than the accepted minimum of canapes, cold turkey, four different kinds of cold cuts, endless salads and molds, all the trimmings, intricate pastries and flowing liquor.

SERIOUSLY (I haven't too much time to work on this problem—the first of our five comes up to bat in a year) I'd like to take a minute to talk it over with you:

My first and strongest opinion was to advocate eliminating entirely the Sunday reception as an unnecessary extra burden on the family.

But considering that there are those who don't ride or who can't get away from business on Saturday, some may feel the Sunday affair is called for. Then too, while it is an extra chore, it also brings extra pleasure to the family. All right, so, unless you're a millionaire, take it easy, man, on the expenditures.

The reason I thought I might suggest discontinuing the Sunday party is that in our synagogue a program has been developed which I admire very much and which I feel well satisfies the requirements of "celebrating" the bar or bas mitzvah of our children.

After the Saturday morning services are over, the congregation is invited in the name of the parents and the bar mitzvah to the vestry where all are served with gefilte fish garnished with lettuce and a slice of cooked carrot, rolls, horseradish, pickles, hot coffee and cake. The cake is practically all baked and given by friends. A good and perhaps less expensive substitute for the gefilte fish is herring. And another change, for the children's table could be salmon or tuna salad plus ice-cream.

I like this menu on Saturday because while it is not a large repast, it does serve as a not too frugal Sabbath lunch, helping housewives to rest that day from endless meal serving. It is traditional food, giving the young a taste for such dishes. And it certainly is festive enough to help the bar mitzvah feel special.

ANOTHER advantage of emphasizing the Sabbath celebration while keeping the next day's down to minimum or less, is that since it is part of the regular Saturday services, the synagogue may be able to keep it simple. I see no reason why the rabbi shouldn't have the right to say to all prospective bar mitzvah parents—"This is the usual menu. In consideration of the feelings of those who can't afford more, please don't start any new trends at these meals."

YOUR NAME

Conducted By
N. PEARLROTH

Want to know what your name means? Address your question to Mr. Pearlroth, National Jewish Post.

Emrock

Dear Mr. Pearlroth:

I would very much appreciate it if you would explain to me the source of the following name. It is Emrock. The family in the past came from East Europe.

PAULINE KOLSKY

Cincinnati.

EMROCK is a mutilation of the celebrated Jewish family name Emmerich. The founder of the family was Solomon ben Mordechai who was Rabbi of the cities of Emmerich and Kleve (Germany) in the year 1600.

Descendants of Solomon took the surname of Gumpertz or Gompers, while the kin of his brother Ellahu who was a banker in Emmerich took the name of the city as their family name. The family abounds in rabbis, community leaders and merchant princes who dot its history. Samuel Gompers, the American labor leader, was a descendant of this family. The family name Kleve or Calif is included in it.

Gellerman

Dear Mr. Pearlroth:

I would like to find out where the name of Gellerman originated. My father was born in Gubernia Wolyn, in Russia.

JOHN GELLERMAN

Rock Island, Ill.

Gellerman is a surname of geographical origin. Its source is the town of Geldern, in the Rhineland, Germany. Jews settled in Geldern as early as the days of ancient Rome. The Hebrew name of the town was Gellera and the inhabitants were known as "Men of Gellera" or "Gellermen" in old Jewish records. Due to persecutions the Jewish inhabitants scattered to all parts of Europe. It is possible that one of your ancestors was among these exiles.

Barton's Expands Into Detroit

DETROIT—Barton's Bonbonniere, the famous New York candy chain, has selected Detroit as the first city outside of the metropolitan New York area for location of their stores. Seven Detroit stores opened this week, will be closed on the Sabbath and on all Jewish holidays, as is the case with all their New York stores.

Five courses in Jewish Education will be offered this summer by the Department of Education of The Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning, in Philadelphia.

What Foods These Morsels Be

AS WE have insisted before, one good way to save on meat bills is to serve more fish. And the following should please as well as economize.

GEFILTE FISH

- |                      |                          |
|----------------------|--------------------------|
| 3 pounds fish, whole | 1 cup cold water         |
| 2 onions             | 1 tablespoon butter      |
| 1 slice bread        | 1 stalk celery, cut up   |
| salt and pepper      | 2 sprigs parsley, cut up |
| 1 egg, beaten        |                          |

Bone the fish, being careful not to break the skin, and leaving the head and tail intact. Put the flesh of the fish through the grinder with one of the onions. Soak the bread in cold water, squeeze it dry, and mix with ground fish and onion; add salt, pepper, egg and cold water, and mix thoroughly until smooth. Fill skin of the fish with this mixture, making it look natural. Sprinkle outside of fish with salt and pepper, place in pot with fish bones, cut the remaining onion into quarters and add, add butter, celery and parsley, and hot water to cover. Let simmer about an hour and a quarter until done. If desired, strain fish liquid and make sauce. To avoid burning and make removal easier, it is preferable to lay fish on a plate and place the whole in pot to cook.

GEFILTE FISH, BAKED

Prepare fish according to instructions for Gefilte Fish. When skin of fish has been filled, place in well greased baking pan, sprinkle with bread crumbs, and dot with butter. Bake in oven at 425 degrees for an hour or until done.

BAKED FISH WITH CREOLE SAUCE

- |                              |                            |
|------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 3 pounds fish, filleted      | ¼ pound mushrooms, chopped |
| 1 pint hot water             | salt and pepper            |
| 1 cup stewed tomatoes        | butter                     |
| 1 onion, chopped fine        | 2 tablespoons flour        |
| 1 green pepper, chopped fine | chopped parsley            |

Have fish filleted, but keep the bones. Put bones in pot with hot water, and let boil 15 minutes until water is well flavored. Strain, reserve 1½ cups of the fish liquid, and discard the rest. Add tomatoes to fish liquid, add onion and green pepper, and salt and pepper. Saute mushrooms in a little butter for 5 minutes, and add. Brown flour by sprinkling it on a pie plate, placing plate over high heat, and stirring flour constantly as it browns. Add browned flour to the mixture, mix well, and let simmer over slow fire for an hour. Dry the fillets, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and brush with butter. Roll each fillet up like a jelly roll, and fasten with a toothpick. Place in a greased casserole, add 1 cup of the sauce, and bake in oven at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until fish is done. Remove from oven, add rest of sauce, sprinkle with chopped parsley, and serve immediately. Mushrooms may be omitted if desired.

BAKED FILLETS OF FISH DRESSED WITH CHEESE

- |                                    |                           |
|------------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 2 pounds fillets                   | 1 cup hot milk            |
| 2 tablespoons butter               | chopped parsley           |
| ½ cup flour                        | 2 cups old cheese, grated |
| 1 tablespoon prepared mild mustard | salt and pepper           |

Make a White Sauce of the butter, flour and milk. Add mustard, cheese, salt and pepper, and mix well. Dry the fillets, and cut into portions for serving. Cover each with the creamed sauce, and sprinkle with chopped parsley. Place in well buttered baking dish, and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

2 From Midwest Study Farming In Israel

JERUSALEM — Two young American farmers from the mid-west will study farming in Israel under the auspices of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The two, Miriam A. Bouie of Marysville, O., and Ernest R. Lomax of Decorah, Ia., are part of a group of 58 young American farmers who will spend the summer working on farms in 21 foreign countries.

Support For Summer Services

OUR battle for regulation services throughout the summer has been slowly gaining support. It is one of those things which is bound to succeed, even though none of the rabbinical bodies has yet started a campaign among its members to this effect. In fact last year when we sought to give impetus to the idea by asking the heads of the seminaries for positive statements, all we got in most cases were evasive comments.

Here are two letters we received in the past few days, which no doubt are symptomatic of the change in attitude that is taking place all over the country.

The Post recognizes that many congregations have been holding services the year round for years, and we do not refer to the sundown services which no Orthodox congregation has interrupted since the destruction of the temple.

We refer to the full congregational service starting at 7:30 p. m. or later. Without this service, since the Saturday morning service has such deplorable attendance, services cease entirely for four months for most synagogue members.

We are fully in accord with those who would vary the summer services to make allowance for the weather, but we cannot understand a religion which believes in worship for only eight months of the year.

Here are the letters:

"You are to be commended on your persistent campaign against the closing of the synagogue services during the summer. Our making of Judaism a seasonal religion is a major contribution to its present deplorable state.

"You will be interested in an experiment with summer services which we conducted at Temple Beth Israel. In the spring of 1948 we resolved that we would hold regular services every Friday evening throughout the year. However, we introduced the following features at the summer services (that is beginning with the first Friday following Shavuos and ending with the last Friday preceding Rosh Hashonah):

"(1) The service lasts one hour; (2) Music by a cantor without organ plus congregational singing; (3) Sermon lasts 10 minutes and is followed immediately by 10 minutes of questions and discussions by the worshippers; (4) After services cookies and punch are served in the social hall at which the woman who blesses the candles that evening is hostess.

"The attendance exceeded our very expectation. It was much better than during the regular season. It is perfectly apparent that our people prefer the informality of the service and are especially eager to 'talk back' to the rabbi—a phase of our religious life which is worthy of encouragement.

"So successful have these services been for three successive summers that the all-year-round synagogue is the established practice at Temple Beth Israel. It should be added that our situation is simplified because we have two rabbis (my associate is Ernst M. Lorge) and we take our vacations at different times. However, in other congregations it can be arranged for the laity to take over during the absence of the rabbi. In every congregation there are men and women who enjoy being in charge of services and with a little guidance from the rabbi are sure to do a creditable job."

RABBI S. FELIX MENDELSON

Temple Beth Israel,
Chicago

"Your editorial in the last issue of the Post about summer services struck a responsive note. For a long time now I have been advocating a year round program for the Synagogue and Temple. If we can't expect that, at least we ought to deny ourselves the luxury of believing that we can sop up enough religion in the nine months of coolness of the year to last us for the other three months when as you know, the heat of summer evaporates everything—including religion.

"About three weeks ago the board of Temple Beth-El of Rockford decided that the time has come to stop the closing of the Temple in the summer in small communities of the country. I am glad to say that they approved a plan for summer services. Even though they will be curtailed services, still it is a good step forward. And I hope it indicates trends in other communities."

This Organization We Support

THIS is our first acquaintance with the Conference Committee of National Jewish Women's Organizations, but if their action, as reported elsewhere in this issue was sincere, then it has a supporter in The Jewish Post.

The action referred to is a resolution pledging its constituent organizations to an intensive effort to further Jewish education among American Jewish children, youth and adults.

Included in the women's organizations who belong to this Conference Committee are the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods.

In our city mothers making up the Temple Sisterhood have in the city-wide Hebrew school less than five children out of a potential that must number at least two hundred.

If the resolution is not just another combination of words to be put on the record and then ignored, the Rabbi of the Reform Group will now have some support for his effort to bring up knowledgeable Jews in his congregation.

But we have had too much experience with resolutions like this.

The Reform group, were it to undertake a determined effort to convince its parents that if it wants to perpetuate Reform Judaism, it will have to work at it, could revolutionize Jewish education in America.

As long as some Jewish children do not get Jewish education, the others will feel that they are being imposed on. The beauty of public school education is that every child attends.

Were the Reform group to begin to make use of the Hebrew School as do the Conservative and Orthodox Jews, the problem of Jewish education would be simplified no end, and the future of the Jewish group in the United States would be assured.

Why Hasn't Chaplaincy Quota Been Filled

WE cannot take the rosy view of the Jewish chaplaincy picture that the National Jewish Welfare Board seems to entertain.

Naturally there are many difficulties in connection with supplying the quota of 111 Jewish chaplains by the July 1, 1951 deadline, but the JWB just went through World War II and there are no significant changes in the procurement picture since then.

No one has made the charge that the rabbis are unwilling to make the same sacrifice demanded of the GI. If that charge were true then it could be said that there must be something inherently wrong with a rabbinate that will not volunteer to give service to its sons in the time when these ministrations are most needed.

Perhaps the JWB has been too complacent.

There were instances in World War II where rabbis evaded the call to service even though pressure of no small weight was brought to bear.

But now with a system of hearing boards and appeals, every rabbi has full privilege of stating his case, and full publicity should be given to every instance where even after the appeal has been heard, the rabbi still refuses to answer the call.

Use of Dr. and Rev. Dr. Should Be Discontinued

SOME rabbis identify themselves publicly with the title of Dr.

The New York Times in reporting weddings, always marks the rabbis as Rev. Dr.

That this is the same title applied by the New York Times to Protestant clergymen, does not signify that the rabbis are thereby trying to disguise their identity, although we would not make the same flat statement about all the families involved in these marriages.

But it would seem now that all rabbis should insist that they be identified as Rabbi. This is a tradition-honored title, and whereas some few years ago many bearded men arrogated to themselves the title of rabbi when they had no right to it, that situation has by now been practically eliminated.

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR

COVERING THE sale of the Israel Independence Bonds has been difficult for an Anglo-Jewish paper which has been trying to do the right thing, and the press department of the American Financial and Development Corporation has done practically nothing to make the job any easier.

For the weeks before the opening of the drive, the AFDC press department were sending out long dry accounts about Israel, as if our readers have not been reading about that week after week in the Post, not as propaganda, but as the developments in Israel made news.

Then when Ben-Gurion arrived here, we were caught in the middle for two weeks straight—again with no one in the press department seemingly interested in our plight.

Ben-Gurion arrived in the U.S. after we went to press but before our paper hit the streets, which is Friday.

The big celebration in New York including the ticker-tape reception and the Madison Square Garden Rally hit us exactly the same way.

Any alert press department would have sent out advance stories written in the past tense, covering the essential parts of Mr. Ben-Gurion's itinerary plus some of the events that were to take place at the meetings and at the rally.

BEFORE THAT rally, we called long distance and checked all over the U.S., attempting to get a figure to use of the bond sale.

Obviously the press department could have given us this figure within a few million. We couldn't even get Harry Seave on Tuesday evening, the night before we went to press, and two days before the rally, to give us an approximate figure.

So we made our own estimate, which was off, as you know, but still our story of the rally and the parade in New York, written the day before they took place and read by you the day afterwards, held up exceedingly well.

We spent our time and money trying to give the drive a front page story every week and it would have been only the slightest consideration from the AFDC to show some signs of cooperation.

OF COURSE because of Ben-Gurion, the bond sale is getting so much free space in the daily papers, that the press people are probably breaking their arms patting themselves on the back. But if they think that the daily papers in Indianapolis have even mentioned that Ben-Gurion is in the U.S., they are mistaken. Yet Indianapolis is a good market for somewhere between one and two million dollars worth of bonds.

So how about it, Henry. You've done a masterful job of organizing the sale, and I intend to write an editor's chair soon crowing over the executive directors of the federations and welfare funds who were predicting last year a sale of only $40-60,000,000 in bonds in the U.S. for 1951.

But why make it so tough for me to give you publicity. Some cooperation from your press department would be appreciated.

RABBI Aaron H. Blumenthal of Mount Vernon, N. Y., has sent me a note saying that he had written to the Ministers Life and Casualty Union, applying for an insurance policy because they advertised in The Post.

You will recall that this insurance company decided to advertise in The Post as a result of the recommendation of Rabbi Albert G. Minda, of Minneapolis, the home city of the company.

I call this to your attention to show you how readers can help the progress of The Post.

It brings to mind the letter Abe Liff of Dayton wrote to the Ford company just before he went into a showroom and bought a new Ford car, or the letter that Ted Solinger of Owensboro wrote to the Lovable Brassiere Company ordering their products for his store.

Now for the next few months, The Post will be full of resort advertising. You have made this amount of important revenue possible by mentioning The Post when you wrote for reservations or information. Resort and hotel advertising has been a great boon to The Post. We are a natural media for them, and this advertising will continue to grow. More and more hotels will advertise in The Post as you tell them about your paper, the paper you read each week, the paper in whose progress you are deeply interested.

Arrest of Agudath Israel Leaders Termed 'Hoax'

NEW YORK—The Agudath Israel Youth Organization of America this week hurled a charge of "the biggest hoax in Jewish history" at the government of Israel following the internment of three leaders of its affiliate in Israel.

Rabbi Morris Sherer, executive director of the American group, said the arrest of the Agudas Israel Youth Organization of Israel leaders was a "pre-election trick."

He said the arrests of Rabbi Shlomo Lorentz, president of the organization, and his two top aides, Shimon Siroka and Israel Shadmi, was an attempt on the part of the Government to silence the mounting protest against its anti-religious policy.

The men were arrested in raids made after the finding of smoke bombs and other weapons in a Yeshiva.

Rabbi Sherer said the trio had no connection with the ultra-religious Natoural Karta, and denied their involvement in what he called the "alleged" plot to bomb the Knesset.

Brandeis University is the subject of a full-length feature article in the current issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

RABBI SHERER EXPLAINS POSITION ON PICKETING AT BEN GURION RALLY

Editor, National Jewish Post:

I was taken aback by the manner in which your reporter conveyed his interview with me in your last issue regarding the picketing of Prime Minister Ben Gurion at the Madison Square Garden Rally.

Although in essence he quotes me correctly, the use of a half-quotation oftentimes can result in a false and misleading impression tantamount to a misquotation. I distinctly told your reporter that I will give him a statement for quotation, conditional on his conveying my sentiments regarding the source of a situation which inspired the pickets to adopt such "unorthodox" methods. A blanket repudiation of these well-intentioned and orderly demonstrators which is not coupled with any comment about the cause they advocate, does not present my views in their true light. . . .

I believe that it would be catastrophic for religious interests if Prime Minister Ben Gurion were to receive the impression from his cross-country swing that he has earned the unanimous approbation of all Jews from the Atlantic to the Pacific for the policy his party pursues. This would merely serve to encourage an increased tempo of his battle against religious precepts and against orthodox immigrant parents' free choice to educate their child in a religious school.

In this light, I feel that orthodox Jewry in America would be guilty of a distinct disservice to its historic interests and to the welfare of the Jewish State if it were to keep silent and adopt a "hush-hush" policy out of a magnified sense of "respect to a visiting guest". . . .

Very sincerely yours,

Executive Vice-President,

MEZUZZAH DIVISION IN KOREA ADDS NEW TERM TO SOLDIERS' JARGON

A NEW Hebrew word may soon be added to army jargon as a result of activities of the 341st Panel Bridge Company in embattled Korea. The company, made up of many Jewish boys from Philadelphia, is known as the "mezzuzah" company, a title the company bears proudly, according to Chaplain Oscar M. Lifshutz. Chaplain Lifshutz divulged the company's title in a report to the National Jewish Welfare Board of how he conducted a seder for the men, as they encamped near Suwon.

Country Clubs Jewish?

JEWISH country clubs were characterized as an assimilatory influence by scholarly Morlinter May, of Nashville, Tenn., chairman of the Zionist Organizations of America's executive committee. "Many Jews go to the country clubs as an easy escape from everything Jewish," he told a Zionist audience in Indianapolis this week. May said that in a recent comparison of dues paid to the Temple in Nashville with dues paid to the country club, only two or three Temple members were found who paid as much to the Temple as to the country club. The Nashville mill-owner painted a gloomy picture of the present-day U.S. Jewish community.

Ask yourself—
Am I all finished?

If you are...
They are!

ASK YOURSELF: "Am I all finished? Have I given and raised all I can to save the homeless? Is the fund-raising season closed for me?"

But if you're all through, then so are they — the thousands of homeless Jews who wait, with mingled terror and hope, for their turn to go to Israel from Eastern Europe and Moslem countries.

American Jews can't call it quits at this crucial point.

These final days of the campaign in your community are the crucial ones. Now is your only chance — and theirs. Today, tomorrow, you can help decide their fate — freedom or continued oppression.

Consider what American Jews have helped to do in the first four months of this year alone: No less than 80,000 human beings have been brought to safety in Israel from lands of darkness and danger.

But consider this: 120,000 more wait to be saved in 1951. In Israel, 20,000 housing units must be built for them now, land must be reclaimed, crops increased to feed Israel's new citizens. At the same time, 400,000 must be kept alive in Eastern Europe and Moslem lands, and 20,000 helped to reach the U.S. before the end of October.

Cash is needed to save them all. If you've made a pledge, pay that pledge now. If you're a campaign worker, go through your cards again — call on every prospect. Tell your family, your friends, your neighbors — this is no time to let up!

We're not finished yet. The campaign isn't over. So let's make every day count — for them. Give cash and get cash. Let's give them their start by doing our part now.

Rabbis Enlist Support of Ministerial Body on Friday Opening Fight

BRADFORD, Pa.—(NJP)—The drive of this community's Reform and Conservative Rabbis to secure closing of stores on Friday nights is developing into a running fight with the Jewish store owners.

The rabbis, Ephraim F. Einhorn, of Conservative Beth Israel and Rabbi Herbert Hendel of Reform Beth Zion, have won the support of the Bradford Ministerial Association.

But the Jewish merchants, not all of whom rebuffed pleas of the rabbis, are conducting special Friday night sales, offering bargains only between the hours of 6 and 9 p. m.

The Ministerial Association voted unanimously to join the drive to force the Retail Merchants Bureau to rescind its action.

The stores will have been open for the fourth successive week tonight (May 25), and for the fourth week the rabbis have inserted advertisements in the Era, local daily paper, listing the stores which are open Fridays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Before conducting a public campaign, the rabbis visited the Jewish store-owners, but with little success.

Many Jewish merchants were among the staunchest advocates of Friday night opening. (NJP, May 18, 1951)

Following the appeal of the rabbis, which was also vigorously conducted through the daily press and in their own bulletins, some Jewish stores did close down at the regular 5 p. m. closing hour.

The Christian community alerted to action by the rabbis, is giving them full support.

The Catholic Church, which is not included in the Ministerial Association, is also lending aid to the rabbis.

Rabbi Einhorn told The Post that the boards of the two Jewish congregations are supporting their rabbis.

A committee of the Ministerial Association headed by the Rev. Clement B. Yinger, pastor of the First Methodist Church, has been named to approach the Retail Merchants Bureau. The Ministerial Association voted to begin an immediate campaign among the bankers, industrialists and businessmen in their respective congregations to rescind the Friday night opening move.

Charges by the Jewish merchants that the rabbis are interfering unnecessarily in business not germane to the pulpit have not deterred the rabbis.

MILLIONS ADDED TO BOND PURCHASES; BLAUSTEIN, OF AJ COMMITTEE, BUYS $250,000.

NEW YORK—(NJP)—A report meeting on the progress of the sale of Israel Independence bonds is being planned here for Wednesday, May 30, just prior to Prime Minister Ben Gurion's departure for Israel, it was learned this week.

Meanwhile the prime minister's cross country trip is bringing in sales totalling millions of dollars. No estimates of the sale to date were available at headquarters of the American Financial and Development Corp., sponsors of the drive.

Purchase of $250,000 in bonds by the Jacob Blaustein, president of the American Jewish Committee, and his family, was being hailed here.

BLAUSTEIN

The same amount was bought in Detroit by Abe Kasle, who was chairman of the 1951 Detroit Federation campaign.

Other large purchases newly announced were Robert Gurney, $200,000 and Dewey D. Stone, $150,000.

Many $100,000 Sales

Many $100,000 purchases were announced, among them the Feferman family in South Bend, Ind., Boris Margolin, Barney Balaban, Joseph Levy, Walter Annenberg, Morris Senderowitz, Jr., Morris Shapiro, the Rabb family of Boston and Max Osnos.

In Boston, Ben-Gurion was handed sales totalling $3,332,000. Other New England states poured in another $1,360,000 at the same mass meeting.

Newark sales were reported at $900,000 following an appearance there of Eddie Cantor.

The opening sale in Miami brought in $506,300, and was termed the "miracle of Miami" by Dr. Morris Goodman, sale chairman.

In Los Angeles, the welcoming committee reversed an announced policy requiring the purchase of a bond for admission as has been followed in other cities. Admission to hear Ben-Gurion at the Hollywood Bowl last night (May 24) was without obligation of any kind.

Incidents Mar Tour

Several incidents marred Ben-Gurion's tour.

In Boston, Mrs. Rose S. Berenson, president of the New England Women's Branch of the Orthodox Jewish Congregations, protested against the non-kosher breakfast held in Ben-Gurion's honor. No delegates from her organization attended the affair.

In Chicago a meeting set for Friday evening was hurriedly cancelled after protests.

REFORM RABBIS USE PENSION FUND $5000 TO BUY ISRAEL INDEPENDENCE BONDS

NEW YORK—Their faith in Israel was evidenced in hard cash, when the Reform Rabbinate used $5,000 of its funds to purchase Israel Independence bonds, it was announced here. The purchase was made by Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein, president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

In short ceremonies with Eliezer Kaplan, Minister of Finance of Israel, Rabbi Bernstein said, "this purchase is from our pension and welfare fund, monies normally used to help widows, orphans and elderly sick and indigent Rabbis and scholars. It represents a business investment of our welfare fund—the first we have ever made—with money never used purely for sentimental reasons."

UJA Expects Millions to Present To Ben Gurion At Chicago Rally

CHICAGO—What may turn out to be the greatest gathering in the history of United Jewish Appeal national conventions may take place here this week-end when Premier David Ben-Gurion will be the star attraction.

Communities from all over the U.S. are sending delegations to the meeting—with checks.

Many millions of dollars are expected to be added to the cash collections of the 1951 UJA by the funds which the delegates will bring with them for presentation

Israel Stops Drainage, Yielding to UN

JERUSALEM—Israel, assured by the big powers that the halting of drainage work in the Huleh swamp is only temporary, has decided to abide by the decision of the United Nations.

The feeling here is that the UN action has given the Syrians a bonus for interfering into the situation.

The UN position on the drainage work has to do mostly with compensation for the less than ten Arab families in the area. These Arabs have fled to Syria, where they are under the control of the government, and are not likely to be anything but intransigent.

to the Premier.

This will be the last opportunity for midwestern and western Jewry to glimpse the head of Israel, as he will continue eastward preparatory for departure home next week.

Irgun Drive Defies Jewish Agency Ban

NEW YORK (NJP)—Defying the ruling of the American Section of the Jewish Agency that its campaign for funds in the U.S. is unauthorized, "Shelach" the appeal of the former Irgun party will be continued. The Post was told this week.

Spokesman for the "Shelach" said they would proceed with their drive as long as the need exists.

The funds are for rehabilitation of former members of the Irgun, who they claim fought in the underground prior to 1947.

Israel's Veterans Law provides care for all existing members of the defense forces, regular or irregular, without regard to their present or former political affiliations, who fought in the Israel-Arab War beginning Nov. 30, 1947.

Earlier this month the Agency banned a public drive under Z. O. A. auspices for supplies for soldiers and their families.

Jewish Chaplains Meet Less Than Half of Quota

NEW YORK—(NJP)—Hope that the shortage of Jewish chaplains in the nation's armed forces would be relieved by mid-summer was given up here this week when it became clear that the goal of 111 chaplains by July could not be met.

The snag in chaplaincy recruitment, which will leave thousands of Jewish soldiers in overseas units and stateside army camps without adequate spiritual guidance, developed in spite of the fact that rabbinical bodies are making every effort to fill their quotas.

Complicated and lengthy "processing" of those designated for the chaplaincy, "red tape" in army assignment procedure and "dilatoriness of some men in taking their physicals" were named as factors in the delay by Rabbi Max Eichhorn of the National Jewish Welfare Board.

48 On Duty Now

Latest JWB figures show that 48 Jewish chaplains were on active duty as of May 3. Twenty-five of these are in the army, 16 in the Air Force and seven in the Navy. Five more will be ordered to duty July 25, but because of armed forces policy in sending the men first to Chaplain's School they will not be available for assignment until late in the year.

Fifty-eight others, including virtually the entire graduating classes of the Reform and Conservative seminaries, are now in various stages of "processing" but will not be ready for service until the fall.

This brings the total of actual and potential Jewish chaplains to 111, but it is expected that a number of those "processing" will fail their physical examinations and will then have to be replaced by those next in line.

The quota of 111 was reached on the basis of an armed force of three million. Army tables of organization call for one chaplain per 1,000 men, or 3,000 chaplains of all denominations. The Jewish portion of this figure was fixed at 3.7%, which is generally accepted as the percentage of Jews in country's total population.

Orthodox Encounter Obstacles

Each of the three branches of American Jewry were assigned one-third of the quota, but the Orthodox are having more trouble in meeting their goal of 37 than either of the other two according to Rabbi Eichhorn. He attributed this to the fact that, while the Reform and Conservative movements each have their rabbis concentrated in a single rabbinical body, there is no central Orthodox organization whose action affects every Orthodox rabbi.

Instead, the Rabbinical Council of America must set up a draft system for each of the numerous Yeshivot and get them to accept it.

In enforcing the voluntary "draft" of their rabbis, the three organizations first call on unmarried men, then on married men without children. No married men with children have as yet been called up for processing. Those "endorsed" by their rabbinical body for service have a right to appeal. Appeals also involve a time-consuming procedure.

Meanwhile, to cope with the most urgent need for spiritual leadership, the JWB has recruited a corps of 205 part-time chaplains who are conducting services at chaplain-less installations.

Maryland Hillel To Get New Site, Bias Charges Hit

COLLEGE PARK, Md.—The Hillel Foundation at the University of Maryland here whose denial of a zoning variance several weeks ago led to charges of anti-Semitism, is negotiating for the purchase of a new site, The Post learned this week.

The new lot is owned by the university and will be superior to the original lot, it was said.

The Post was told that refusal of the zoning authorities to grant the building permit to Hillel was not due to anti-Semitism.

Detroit Protests Kosher Meat Prices Raised Not Lowered

DETROIT—(NJP)—A protest by the Jewish Community Council of Detroit that new ceiling prices for kosher meats would raise instead of lower prices, has resulted in a revised schedule.

The new schedule, which took effect Monday, showed an average difference of 10 cents per pound over the prices which the JCC had protested. The new prices are in line with non-kosher ceiling prices.

Louis Rosenzweig, chairman of the JCC's internal relations committee expressed the fear that the increase permitted by the OPS first price list would have weakened Kashrut observance in Detroit.

A survey of current kosher meat prices in Detroit, conducted by the JCC, disclosed that some kosher cuts cost twice as much today as they did two years ago, while an over-all price raise of 33% in kosher meats was noted.

RABBI NOT SATISFIED; CHECKS MEAT PRICES

ASHTABULA—(NJP)—Is the oft-heard statement, used as an excuse for abandoning observance of kashruth, that kosher meats are much higher than non-kosher meats accurate.

Rabbi Norman Samson of Conservative Congregation Tifereth Tifereth Israel, determined to find out for himself.

He selected 12 meat items and compared their prices at Schreiber's kosher meat market in nearby Cleveland, with the prices at the local Fisher store.

Only 33 Cents Difference

A pound each of the 12 cuts cost $10.60 in the non-kosher market, and sold for $10.93 in the

Rabbi's 87th Birthday Draws 4 Noted Sons

ATLANTIC CITY—The four sons of Rabbi Bernard L. Levinthal, gathered here Thursday to celebrate the 87th anniversary of their father. The sons are: Judge Louis Levinthal, Dr. Israel H. Levinthal, a rabbi in Brooklyn, Abraham Levinthal, Philadelphia attorney and Cyrus Levinthal a Los Angeles, Cal. lawyer.

kosher market, a difference of only 33 cents.

Biggest differential was in ground meat which sold for 55 cents non-kosher as against 80 cents kosher. Rib steak, which was only 89 cents non-kosher, sold for $1.10 kosher.

But veal chops were ten cents a pound cheaper kosher, and stewing chicken saved the Jewish housewife five cents a pound.

Calf liver was the highest priced item of the 12, selling for $1.59 in the non-kosher market. The kosher calf liver sold for $1.48.

Prices Not Out of Line

Rabbi Samson concluded that "You pay three cents more on a dollar for kosher meat. He seemed to be satisfied that the price of kosher meats was not out of line with the price for non-kosher meats.

Prices of other kosher meats per pound were top rib roast, 90 cents; chuck, 80 cents; lamb chops, $1.15; beef liver, 89 cents; wieners 85 cents; salami 95 cents and beef tongue, 58 cents.

Conservative Men Hear Call for U. S. Chalutzim

PARKSVILLE, N.Y. — A call for "chalutzim in America" was issued by Rabbi Jacob B. Agus, of Baltimore, in an address before the 22nd annual convention of the National Federation (Conservative) of Jewish Men's Clubs.

Judaism today needs lay men and women who are willing to serve as pioneers "of a full-blooded and truly spiritual pattern of Jewish life," the Baltimore rabbi asserted.

Rabbi Agus pointed out that the Israel was made possible by the pioneers of yesterday, "who charted the path of redemption in their own personal lives. We need chalutzim today who would do the same for American Judaism."

Rabbi Agus concluded with the observation that "a viable and inspiring pattern of Jewish piety is now emerging. We need dedicated men and women to make

Rabbi Silver Charges Israel Favors Collective Sector, Hampers Trade

NEW YORK—An audience which jam-packed the ball room of the Hotel New Yorker heard Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver charge that the Israel Government showed favoritism to the collective sector and is hampering "business and private investments".

The world Zionist leader, just back from a visit to Israel, warned that extreme political partisanship and the lack of a unified education system are the twin dangers besetting the Jewish state.

Rabbi Silver was enthusiastic about the progress of the Jewish state.

"I don't know of any spot in the world today that is so full of dynamism and vitality," the Cleveland rabbi related.

"The most gratifying thing," he declared, "is the positive business of building the country".

Referring to the four separate education systems, which he said is impeding the process of amalgamation of the newcomers, Rabbi Silver said the child is trained to look upon those who share his economic and social views as "his people".

Rabbi Silver said he was troubled by the lack of "spiritual anchorage" of the youth. A secular spirit prevails, he related. Many of the youth are quite indifferent and cynical "to the Jewish faith and moral code which is Judaism" he declared.

"I don't say this because I'm a cleric," he stated.

Israeli youth is tending to isolate itself from world Jewry, Rabbi Silver observed.

"Israeli youth must know that the State was brought about by world Jewry and the Israeli community must know that they are the trustees of the Jewish people."

He called upon American Jews to continue to support the state. It can't be built up overnight, he declared, and we can't stop midway. "We have commitments of long duration."

He voiced the hope that "Men even from free countries may wish to go there and make it their home."

ADL Reports Police Cooperating on Poster

NEW YORK — The request by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith that police departments discontinue publicizing the religious faiths of criminal fugitives in "wanted" circulars (NJP, May 11, 51) is meeting with the wholehearted cooperation it was reported this week.

Within three weeks after the League had circularized some 2500 police chiefs, here and abroad, more than 500 replies were received. Without a single exception, according to Benjamin Epstein, ADL head, they agreed with ADL that use of the description "Jewish" or "Christian" to identify a fugitive's nationality or physical characteristics was not only of little value in police work but poor policy as well.

Many chiefs wrote that they had incorporated a "statement of principles on the problem, suggested to them by ADL, as part of their local police procedure."

The statement had been worked out by League officials after meetings with the board of officers of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, which has headquarters in Washington, D.C.

the living reality. We need chalutzim who would demonstrate by their personal example the healing and exalting powers of the Sabbath—to take a case in point—in the American environment."

HERE'S THE
BEST FLAVOR
IN BEER!

THE "WIEDEMANN FLAVOR"

BREWING DOES IT— the WIEDEMANN WAY!
Wiedemann buys the best to brew the best. Wiedemann's is traditionally brewed, then slowly AGED . . . and aged LONGER. You can count on Wiedemann's Fine Beer for quality that never varies—and the most completely satisfying flavor you've ever tasted—the best flavor in beer—the Wiedemann Flavor!

Wiedemann's amber bottle guarantees flavor protection from harmful light rays.

WISECRACKS

By Norm Weisman

THE ENEMY AND THE WOMEN BETTER BEWARE! Our own Charles Efroymsen Jr. is stationed in the Air Corps and is now in Germany. Lotsa luck to a swell guy! . . . Flash! This happened last week: Irv Ruben, a wonderful guy and a bowling sponsor, gave a banquet for his two bowling teams, one of which (the B'nai B'rith team) won the all-Jewish city tournament. During the banquet, the winning team, after a few dares and challenges, agreed to meet the other Aaron Ruben team, the Beth-El team, this Sunday night at the Penn alleys at 8 p. m.! Stakes will be steaks, because the losing team picks up the checks of the winners. Get Irv Ruben's story about how he got finances to pay for the banquet, and get the most laughable story of the year!

ART JACOBS IS GIVING OUT SUITS, because adorable wife (Barbara Sternfels) presented him with a boy—congrats! . . . Nate Sacks giving cigars with "It's a girl" on it! The "mom" is the former Mildred Cohen! Congrats! . . . Flash! Orchids to the ZBT fraternity at IU! They again won the Sigma Chi Foundation scholarship for the second straight year! You have to really be smart to do that, and those boys are that, and a swell bunch, too! The trophy is one of the largest on campus. (Personal to the Zebes: your living room is one of the finest I have ever seen on any campus, and your rating in sports on the campus is high also. It was a pleasure meeting most of the gang, and hope for a repeat pleasure soon! Remind George Rubin of Michigan City (Girls: he's good looking and single) to tell the Hoodwins, the Rubys, the Rubins and the George Sax's, all of Michigan City, to get me a girl and invite me up there!

BERNIE ASHOP WAS ONE OF THE BIG PRIZE-WINNERS at the National B'nai B'rith bowling tournament at Dayton recently! . . . At the mixed doubles bowling banquet at Club 52 last week, the feature, besides the swell food, dancing and election of officers, was Dr. Abe Schuckman's birthday, and he presented his birthday cake to the occasion! It was immense and a beaut! Happy birthday, Doc! . . . Happy 13th anniversary to the Nate Goldfarbs, and a big hurrah to the Kelly Levitts on their 15th anniversary. May you both have many, many more! . . . (Personal to the I. H. Melmans of Miami Beach, Fla.: Your son Tommy, a ZBT at IU, and I say "hello" to you, and we both feel fine! Tom's very congenial!)

TWO UNSUNG HEROS are Janice Schwartz and Jean Moskowitz, who are devoting so much time for USO work at Camp Atterbury! Nice work, gals! . . . To Bobby Lipp, who just passed his "Today I am a man" test via the confirmation route; you can thank your wonderful parents, the Dave Lipps, who gave you such a terrific reception at the Broadmoor by being the man they want you to be! Congrats! . . . Flash! The big Sammie Formal dance is this Saturday night at IU! You really rate when you rate this dance! Hi, fellows!

THANKS, GARY, for the pleasure of entertaining your prominent citizens who were visiting here! They are the Irv Brenmans (I like your wife, Irv) and the Chuck Gluecks (your wife too, Chuck) and the Jerry Rob-

Max M. Suess, 45, Dies Monday at Home

Max M. Suess, 45, 3022 Central ave., died at his home Monday, after a lengthy illness. Services were held Tuesday afternoon at Aaron Ruben Funeral home, with burial in Ohev Debeck Cemetery.

Mr. Suess was born in Indianapolis and lived here all his life. He owned the Suess Drug store until his retirement last year. He was graduated from Purdue university in 1928, and was a member of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity, the Central Hebrew Congregation, the Ohev Debeck society, the Indianapolis Retail Druggist association and the Indiana Druggist association.

Survivors are his wife Cecilia, a son Robert, Indianapolis; a brother Sam, Saginaw, Mich.; and a sister, Mrs. Jeanne Finnegan, Indianapolis.

bins and Al and Max Polland—all please hurry back! . . . Flash! Thanks to all my wonderful "sisters," the DePhiE's of IU! Space prevents me from raving about the marvelous time I had with you and to mention all the girls' names, but will mention the Indianapolis gang, who are Lenora Epstein, (the president) Charlotte Levy, Marilyn Prince, Elaine Tarshes, Lois Fogle and Rosetta Rubin! In the next several columns I will mention the rest. I love you all, and believe me, I'd love to, too! Say hello to your lovely house-mother!

FLASH! Several weeks ago I mentioned about a fellow who has a ring to announce his intentions. I hope to announce his intentions next week! . . . Flash! Here's a real something! The Zionist four-state convention will be here June 23 at the Severin! The speaker? Arthur LURIE, the consul-general of Israel!
